PREFACE.

THE class of books of which the present catalogue treats, though not numerically large when compared with the rest of the library, is of very great importance both on account of the rarity and the beautiful condition of the majority of the books contained in it.

The greater number of the early books were formerly in the Althorp collection, and were acquired about the beginning of the present century at the numerous sales which then took place, especially at those of the Duke of Roxburghe, and of the Merly and White-Knights Libraries. Many of the finest Wynkyn de Wordes and Pynsons came from the choice collection of Stanesby Alchorne which was purchased entire, while many other books were obtained from private sources.

With these and the additions that have since been made, it may be safely said that the library contains the finest collection of English fifteenth century books in existence. The Caxtons comprise more than half the works known to have been issued by that printer, while the set of the productions of the early Oxford Press is still more complete. The books printed by Wynkyn de Worde and Pynson before 1501, number about fifty, and amongst them are several of which no other copies are known. There are, besides, a number of books from the presses of Machlinia and the Schoolmaster of St. Alban's. The London printers of the early sixteenth century are well represented, and amongst the books printed at provincial presses and abroad will be found the first two books in the Scottish language; the first book printed at Tavistock; the first book printed for sale in York; and the only known book printed for sale in Hereford; the two last being unique in a perfect condition.

2286135

Among the books of this period printed on vellum, are the Book of St. Alban's of 1496, Pynson's Sarum Missals of 1500 and 1504, and the unique Breviary of 1508; two works of Henry VIII, one being a presentation copy of his famous book, the Assertio septem sacramentorum adversus M. Lutherum, and the first edition of Piers Plowman.

In the present catalogue no attempt has been made to insert any bibliographical information about the books, or remarks on their rarity or condition, for since a good bibliography must necessarily be compiled on a very different system from a catalogue, to combine the two serves no useful purpose. For those, however, who are interested in the history of English printing, a full list of the books arranged under printers and publishers has been added.

It remains to say a few words concerning the system on which the catalogue has been compiled.

When the author's name is given, the book is entered under his name in the form in which it is best known, and pseudonyms are treated as real names.

In the case of anonymous books, the simple rule has been followed of entering them under the first word of the title other than A, An, or The. By this rule there is never any doubt—the title being known—whether or not a particular book is in the library. To this rule, however, there are a few exceptions. In the case of well-known books of which the first editions were anonymous, but whose later editions contain the author's name and are always spoken of under that name, as for example, Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, the book is entered under the author. In the case of a book not very well-known, where the first edition is anonymous, but the later contain the author's name, the anonymous edition is put under the author's name with a cross-reference from the title.

In cases where the author of an anonymous book is known or conjectured the name is added at the end of the entry in brackets, and a cross-reference given from the name. In a few cases, extra cross-references have been given to enable the reader to find a book or part of a book. Take for instance, the first edition of Milton's Lycidas. Many people are unaware that it forms part of a collection of poems written by members of the University of Cambridge, on the death of a certain Edward King. The title of the book begins Justa Edouardo King naufrago, and it is therefore catalogued under Justa, but as the chief interest of the book now lies in the poem by Milton, a cross-reference is given from Milton and another from King. Anonymous books relating to an association or corporation such as the University of Oxford, are collected together under that head, but cross-references are given from the titles of the books.

INDEX OF PRINTERS AND STATIONERS.

NOTE.

In the following index the titles of dated books are arranged chronologically; of undated books, alphabetically. If no name of place follows the name of the printer or stationer it is to be understood that he carried on business in London.

When a book was printed by one person for another, it will be found under the printer, with the name of the person for whom it was printed in italics, preceded by the word "For." It will also be found under the name of the person for whom it was printed, with the name of the printer in italics, preceded by the words "Printed by."

Books without printers' names but which can with certainty be ascribed to a particular printer, are entered under that printer.
